

Independent Variable- the factor in the experiment that is changed

Dependent Variable- the factor in the experiment that is being measured

Defining Variables

Constant- the factor in the experiment that stays the same

Control group- the factor in the experiment that the independent variable is not applied to. A control group is used for comparison. Not all experiments have a control group.