

Math Homework Scoring

Effective Beginning with Lesson 16

Math homework is due the morning after it is assigned. (For example, homework assigned on Wednesday is due Thursday morning.)

Students check their own work in class against an answer sheet completed by me. My work illustrates the required format and answers.

Corrections are due the following day at 8:00a.m. (So, in our previous example, the corrections to Wednesday's homework are due Friday morning.)

There are 30 points possible for each homework assignment (1 point per problem). If all corrections are complete and turned in on time, students will receive the full 30 points.

Students will lose:

- 2 points for each day the original assignment is late
- 2 points for each day corrections are not completed and turned in
- 2 points per problem that is still incorrect after checking and correcting in class
- 1 point per problem if work is not shown when necessary (as on my answer sheet)
- 1 point per problem for not checking subtraction problems with addition
